DISTRICT ATTORNEY

George Gascón

George Gascón was born in Cuba, the son of factory workers. After his uncle, a union organizer, was jailed as a political prisoner for speaking against the government, George and his family immigrated to Los Angeles as political refugees.

After dropping out of school, George earned his diploma and then joined the LAPD, where he became second-in-command while earning a law degree. Commanding more than 8,000 personnel, he led major ethics reform in the wake of police misconduct.

As Chief of Police in Mesa, Arizona, George faced threats and harassment for protecting immigrant rights and protected the LGBT community's first amendment rights to protest against Prop 8.

As San Francisco Police Chief, George reduced crime to its lowest level in decades, while at the same time reducing the number of arrests. As DA George has strengthened coordination between the police and DA's office to prevent and reduce crime.

As District Attorney George Gascón is making San Francisco safer for everyone by:

- Increasing the number of prosecuted homicide cases.
- Creating innovative crime prevention programs that provide alternatives to incarceration.
- Bringing victim assistance into neighborhoods, helping domestic violence victims and seniors.
- Aggressively prosecuting wage theft and hate crimes.
- Working with schools and community organizations to reduce truancy and keep kids away from crime.
